

The Singapore Slingers Orchestra!

Sunday, January 17 @ 7:00 pm

Unity on Greenville
3425 Greenville Avenue, Dallas

Tickets are $10.00

Available online (www.dallasunity.org) or in the Unity Bookstore.

The Singapore Slingers, a relatively new, but increasingly popular, Dallas musical group will perform at Unity on Greenville Sunday, January 17 at 7:00 pm. The 17-piece foxtrot orchestra, complete with banjo, accordion, strings and all, recreates the sounds from the days of vaudeville.

This is one of the most unique musical acts in Dallas! Specializing in the music of the 1920s and the 1930s, the Slingers' music is reminiscent of Paul Whitman, Ted Weems, and The California Ramblers. Their repertoire includes one-steps, two-steps, waltzes, rhumbas, pasa doble, marches and, of course, fox trots (oriental and straight up). You'll hear great songs like Lena From Palesteen, Singin' in the Bathtub, Nagasaki, Carolina in the Morning, and Old King Tut. Utilizing vintage arrangements, the group provides a truly authentic sound. Their music is upbeat, energetic and – most importantly – fun!

About The Singapore Slingers

The Singapore Slingers are based in Dallas, Texas, and have been active since 2007. The orchestra members range in age and occupation and come together for the love of the music. The earlier music of this era has a completely different sound and is often overlooked and overshadowed by the big band music of the late 30s and 40s. This music is enjoyable to everyone and the Slingers have proved this in a variety of venues and events they have played. They present the music just as it was way back when- call it historic preservation!

Band Members

Matt Tolentino- leader, vocals, accordion, uke: Sue Hewitt, Brittany Oswald, Christina Harpine- Violin: Jim Herrera, Cynthia Dashiell- Viola: Gretchen Nichols- Cello: Evan Wennerberg- flute: Dave Washburn- clarinet: Cassie Conway, Glen Richards, Blaise Parker- Sax: Alex Rivera, Phil West, Jake Boldman- Trumpet: John Dailey- Trombone: George Gagliardi- Banjo, Guitar: Christian Rios- Bass: Michael Plotkin- Drums